Cabinet cooling with AirSTREAM system

The components that used to design control cabinets are becoming more and more compact even though their switching capacity is increasing. This also means that the thermal loss rate is higher. Heat also builds up in the standard cable ducts. Hotspots are created. Standard climate control features in control cabinets are often not able to dissipate these hotspots and cool air does not get to where it is needed. The consequences could result in frequent failures and machine downtimes.

LÜTZE's AirSTREAM wiring system offers a comprehensive solution for an even climate inside the control cabinet.
